The Professorial Unit About the Program

The Professorial or Mood Disorders Unit is the result of a collaborative working relationship between The Melbourne Clinic and the University of Melbourne. The Director of the Unit is Professor Chee Ng, who is the Healthscope Chair of Psychiatry, Department of Psychiatry, University of Melbourne. The 'Prof Unit' not only provides clinical expertise in the areas of mood and anxiety disorders but also conducts internationally recognised collaborative research in psychiatry.

A 24 bed unit within The Melbourne Clinic, the 'Prof Unit' offers specialised treatment for mood and anxiety disorders. Secondary consultation can also be provided for treatment resistant disorders with complex diagnostic and management problems.

The Approach

The Unit has a multidisciplinary team comprising of the Director, consultant psychiatrists, psychiatry registrars, psychologists, social workers, occupational therapists and psychiatric nursing staff.

Both private inpatients and outpatients will benefit from the comprehensive assessment and treatment program, which is individually tailored for each patient's needs.

Substance Withdrawal Program

About the Program

The Substance Withdrawal Program at The Melbourne Clinic offers high quality professional care to help people withdraw from alcohol and other drugs.

The program aims to assist a process of recovery from substance dependence and offers help with the physical, emotional, relational and spiritual dimensions of addiction. The program aims to enable participants to develop a comprehensive plan to maintain their recovery on discharge.

Patients need to demonstrate a commitment to working toward personal change and be willing to participate in groups.

The program consists of:

- Medically supervised safe withdrawal
- Health education and life skills
- Daily exercise program
- Identification of different stages of the recovery process
- Counselling to deal with issues underlying alcohol or other drug use
- Stress management and relaxation
- Development of coping skills
- Development of relapse prevention strategies
- Dealing with anxiety and depression
- Addressing relationship issues which may impact on recovery
- An optional introduction to a 12-step program
- Prescription of anti-craving medication
- Discharge planning
- Addressing issues of personal spirituality which may enhance recovery

The Approach

The program is staffed by addiction physicians, nurses, a psychologist, an addiction counsellor and a social worker. A consultant psychiatrist or other specialists can be called upon as required. Most commonly your inpatient stay will last approximately one week. At the end of that time a discharge plan will be formulated with you. There is also the opportunity to join The Melbourne Clinic Addictive Behaviours Program.

Anxiety and Depression Program About the Program

The Anxiety and Depression Program (ADP) is an intensive inpatient group program designed to provide a range of strategies for clients suffering with anxiety and mood disorders.

The ADP seeks to design interventions for individuals who may not have responded to other treatments owing to the complexity of their needs.

The Approach

A multi- disciplinary approach is taken to this two-week inpatient program with particular emphasis placed on employing cognitive behavioural therapy strategies.

The ADP adopts a psycho-educational approach wherein participants learn CBT strategies and engage in structured practice to face their anxiety and build confidence in everyday life.

The ADP is suitable for clients who have had no previous treatment and also for those with complex needs who have not responded to other approaches.

Admission

Prior to admission clients are assessed for program suitability and an individual treatment program developed for their admission.

Obsessive Compulsive Disorder Program

About the Program

The Obsessive Compulsive Disorder (OCD) Program is an intensive inpatient program offered throughout the year.

Particular expertise exists within this program, which is the only such intensive treatment available in Australia. The program is modelled on successful intervention programs developed in the United States and the United Kingdom.

The Approach

A multi- disciplinary approach is taken to this two-week inpatient program with particular emphasis placed on employing cognitive behavioural therapy strategies. These include:

- Psycho-education
- Exposure response prevention
- Mindfulness
- Relapse prevention

Clients who complete the program are also offered the opportunity for weekly group Exposure Response Prevention as an outpatient.

Admission

Prior to admission clients are assessed for program suitability and an individual treatment program developed for their admission.

Living Well Program About the Program

The Living Well Program (General Inpatient Program) provides adult relevant therapeutic programs to inpatients who are not involved in any of the specialist programs. Living Well focuses on patient need and recognises the four cornerstones of health: mind, body, spirit and community.

The Living Well Program offers patients the opportunity to learn and practice new skills, discuss issues relevant to recovery, receive information, learn from others, enjoy creative activities, get some exercise and have some fun. The program is evidence based with a clearly defined module of care, a flexible approach and is regularly evaluated.

The Approach

Our goal is to provide a cohesive program that has a recognisable framework, a contemporary approach, can respond flexibly, and provides a richer experience.

The program is delivered each day and is based on a four week rotating cycle. It offers a variety of group topics which are both relevant and practical, including:

- Relapse Prevention
- Reducing Stress
- Goal Setting
- Mindfulness
- Relationships
- Managing Difficult Emotions

The Inpatient Program interfaces with the Day Program and Outreach Service, assisting patients to recover through treatment, support and rehabilitation in their own home and local community.

Eating Disorders Program About the Program

The Eating Disorders Inpatient Program is a specialised program that has been developed and designed to provide comprehensive treatment. Patients are required to be 16 years or older and medically stable. The program is divided into 4 phases to assist patients to progress from the acute stage of the illness to a level where they are able to monitor and manage themselves with support and help from the treating team. The program ensures a sage and trusting environment that fosters the restoration of health and weight, and explores the underlying issues that accompany the illness.

The multi disciplinary team of qualified health professionals are experienced and trained in the area of Eating Disorders and ensure the therapeutic approach to the program is individualised to meet each patients needs.

The inpatient program provides treatment to patients in the acute stage of illness, progressing through an integrated transition to outpatient care, where Day Program and Outreach services offer continuity of treatment ensuring minimal disruption to daily living and social network.

The Approach

Improved nutritional status and emotional well-being are achieved through a nutritious dietary intake, promotion of rest and participation in the daily group program. The program provides the opportunity for patients to learn a range of skills to enable self-management of a healthy weight range by building up inner strength and resources, and through the development of interpersonal and daily living skills and self-confidence.

The program provides structured, steamlined and flexible care in order to meet the varying needs of each individual patient.

When appropriate, we provide the opportunity for some patients to participate in our Day Program for Eating Disorders.

Older Persons Program

About the Program

The Unit is a specialist centre of excellence in the assessment and management of patients aged 65 and over who require treatment for a mental health problem. We are committed to providing a multidisciplinary approach to patient care in a sensitive, caring and safe environment. The unit adopts a best practice approach in mental healthcare and offers individual and group programs delivered by highly trained clinicians who are experts in the delivery of care to this age group. We also acknowledge the central role of families and carers in developing appropriate care plans.

The Approach

The program operates within a context of understanding the interaction between the psychological, physiological and social effects of the ageing process. A range of strategies have been developed to ensure a very high level of care and include the following:

- A Clinical Director who leads the unit and a team of consultant psychiatrist who specialise in Old Age Psychiatry.
- A senior psychiatric registrar is an integral part of the assessment, treatment and discharge of patients. Additionally we have a visiting geriatrician to manage ongoing medical issues.
- There is a program of structured group activities conducted by team members with the aim of enhancing treatment outcomes.
- Discharge planning is commenced at admission and includes regular family conferences.
- An Outreach Service is available to assist in ongoing management of the patient following discharge.

A multidisciplinary approach

The multidisciplinary approach of our program is of particular importance for this age group. The clinical expertise of various health professionals results in optimal patient management and combines to provide the basis for appropriate interventions. For example, the input of the occupational therapist includes assessment and therapy for everyday functioning, the psychosocial focus of social work in the form of community support and resources. It is this that helps position us at the forefront of best practice in the area of aged psychiatry.
